Tank, America's Super Turtle and Ms. Carrie Anne Take on School Shootings to ensure all children come home safe.

Schools are gearing up for Back to School.

How long before we hear breaking news of another school shooting? The way it goes in today's society, probably not long.

That's why Ms. Carrie Anne took it upon herself to make sure all children come home safe. A former military trainer, Ms. Carrie Anne is the mother to two young boys. She became a Mother Activist when Sandy Hook happened and she watched little children led out of school by frightened teachers. She could not believe little boys and girls were left alone to defend for themselves against mad men with guns.

Ms. Carrie Anne started a business to ensure all children come home safe, A Safe Pack, Inc. She's a children's safety advocate and believes the issue lies at the heart of the people who shoot innocent children. Those who have perpetuated evil on the children, have either mental issues or heart issues.

And while the "get rid of gun advocates" have a place in this world – Ms. Carrie Anne believes we can do more by changing how we treat others and learning to live together in harmony and with respect. She also believes that children need protective devices that will ensure all children come home safe.

Ms. Carrie Anne and her team developed the first body armor for children rated to take an AR-15. Many companies are selling body armor but they only stop a hand gun and unfortunately most school shooters use high powered magazines.

Along with the body armor, A Safe Pack also created Tank, America's Super Turtle. Tank is the SpokesTurtle for A Safe Pack and informs parents about the safety of body armor – similar to Tank's turtle shell.

A very serious issue can be turned into a calm conversation with children and parents via Tank's advice.

As much as we want to put our heads in the sand and think a School Shooting could never happen to your child, it can. It's the world we live in and the world we live in demands we teach our children the truth about school shootings and teach them how to protect themselves should a shooter show up on their campus.

Ms. Carrie Anne is on a mission to help other parents take control of their children's safety when they are at school. And she wants to help parents become activists and advocates for their children's safety.

There is nothing like a group of Mama Bears fighting for their young ones. Ms. Carrie Anne is a true example of a Mama Bear and along with Tank, America's Super Turtle, they plan to start the 2019-2020 school year with well-informed parents who help their children come home safe!
